This conflagration Tuesday afternoon destroyed three Main Street buildings and seven businesses in West Liberty, causing damages estimated at $175,000 to $200,000. The fire which started in the C. C. Elam Building, a wooden structure (abaze in photo), quickly spread to the adjoining Elam Utility Co. office building in the foreground and the former Rex Theatre Building. West Liberty firemen and volunteers, who answered the alarm about 4:15 p.m., finally were forced to abandon the three buildings and concentrate on preventing the flames from spreading to other parts of Main Street. Training all hoses on the theatre building, firemen were able to contain the fire at about 4:50 p.m. at the alleyway between the theatre building and the Morgan Motor Building. Firemen said that at one point during their efforts to contain the fire at the alleyway, a change in the wind could have sent the flames racing into the Morgan Motor Building. At 4:55 p.m. fire trucks from five surrounding towns began arriving, dispelling fears that the entire Main Street might be engulfed.

Fire Destroys Three Main Street Buildings In W. Liberty Tuesday

Fire that broke out in downtown West Liberty Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock destroyed three Main street business buildings that housed seven businesses.

Destroyed in the raging conflagration were the Elam Utility building at the corner of Main and Prestonsburg Streets, the C. C. Elam, wooden structure adjacent, and the Rex Theatre building next to the C. C. Elam building.

The blaze started upstairs in the rear of the C. C. Elam wooden building, and then spread to the buildings on each side.

The fire siren sounded at 4:15. The town's volunteer fire department answered immediately, and soon had seven hoses playing on the fire from the town's fire truck parked across Main street.

Quick work by the volunteer fireman kept the blaze from spreading further along Main street, aided by a narrow alleyway between the Theatre Building and the old Morgan Motor Building.

At different times, however, when the wind shifted from its eastward blowing, it appeared the conflagration might spread further along Main street. Quick work of the volunteer fireman prevented this, but phone calls went out to Salyersville, Morehead, Mt. Sterling, Hazel Green, and Prestonsburg for assistance, and the fire departments of each town sent a fire truck and fireman.

Co. office was gutted, net loss will not be over 1,500, it is estimated. Mrs. Olive Burton, clerk-bookkeeper, had just gotten home from the utility office when the fire siren sounded. She rushed back and opened the office door and bystanders helped get out the gas company's records and practically all office equipment. Stored downstairs were a quantity of pipe and fixtures, also heating equipment, etc. But most of the plumbing supplies can be salvaged, said B. C. Phillips of the utility firm. They wish to express thanks to everyone who helped save the office equipment and company records.

Some Jewelry Saved

Mrs. Glenmon McKenzie, clerk at the Licking Jewelry Shop, was assisted by a number of women and bystanders in carrying out a part of the jewelry, silver and some china. However, most of the china and crystal in the exclusive jewelry shop was lost, along with all wall cases and display cases.

Home Supply Loses Heavily

The Home Supply Company's stock of furniture and appliances in the C. C. Elam building was a total loss, and is estimated at $5,000 by Joe Haney and Harold Faulhee, owners. They carried $10,000 in insurance. Merchandise consisted of furniture, carpeting, appliances, a large quantity of plumbing and bathroom fixtures and a large quantity of hardware. Also their office equipment.

Burton's Loss Heavy

Jay Burton estimates loss of the theatre building at $50,000, restaurant equipment in Marie's Tea Room at $2,000, and movie theatre equipment, stored in the building, $12,000. He carried $10,000 in insurance.

Mr. Burton was planning to reopen the movie theatre, and lost the movie projector and lens, the screen, and all theatre seats.

Caskey Less $25,000

Bob Caskey who was using the C. C. Elam building as a storage facility for his Western Auto Store, estimates his loss at approximately $25,000. It consisted of about $10,000 worth of Christmas toys stored in the building, and a big quantity of household items such as televisions, air conditioners, and other merchandise. He had no insurance.

Marie's Tea Room

Marie Litteral was able to save a few items from her tea room, including the adding machine, cash register, soft drink machine, and a quantity of cigarettes. All else was lost.

Barber Shop Lost

Russell Williams was able to get out one barber chair and an air conditioner from his barber shop. Nearly all else was lost.

Fire Discovered About 4:10 p.m.

The fire was discovered around 4:10 p.m. by several persons. It is not known who gave the first alarm. Workers in the buildings involved said they smelled no smoke and had no indication of the blaze until the siren rang.

Two of the businesses—Home Supply Co. and Elam Utility—had closed for the day.

COLD CHECK ARTIST WANTED IN 19 STATES PASSES BOGUS CHECK HERE

A cold check artist wanted by Kentucky State Police and in 18 other states since 1962 passed a forged check in West Liberty Tuesday.

The bogus check—fitting a description of the forger's method of operation, distributed to banks and businesses by State Police—was recognized by Lanny Franklin when the victim attempted to cash it in at the Commercial Bank Wednesday.

By that time, the forger had skipped.

Lee Hampton, who operates a boarding house on Riverside Drive, said he cashed the check when the man rented a room from him Tuesday.

Mr. Hampton described the man well-dressed with black, curly hair. Hampton said the man told him he had come to Morgan County to work on the Canaan City School and needed lodgings.

The check, written on a Winchester bank to the order of "Charles Nelson," and was signed "J. S. Swanton." The amount and signature were written in red ink and bore beneath the signature "Swanton Sheet Metal Works" rubber stamped in black ink.

According to a State Police bulletin to businesses and banks in Kentucky, the forger's checks are always signed by J. S. Swanton and stamped with Swanton Sheet Metal Works. They are always written to the order of "Harold Parley" or "Charles Nelson" and usually bear a number "205" or "529." He often orders flowers to be sent to a relatives in a local hospital or purchases paint to be delivered locally.

Businessmen and individuals in this area are warned to be on the lookout for anyone attempting to pass similar checks. If this forger offers or cashes a check at your business, law officials should be notified immediately.

This is about 1,000 feet deeper than geologists for the New York firm had estimated they would have to go to hit the granite, or basement rock.

And drilling is being continued. But the bit is cutting in hard basal sand, and is making hole very slowly. "It takes about 200 minutes now (Continued on page four)

NATIONAL FARM SAFETY WEEK JULY 19 TO 25

BY H. A. WALLACE

The week of July 19, has been designated by President Nixon as National Farm Safety week. Recent statistics show that the number of accidental deaths in Agriculture is second only to that of the construction industry.

The President has asked all farm families, and every person and group allied with Agriculture, to make every effort permanently to reduce the number of accidents which occur at work, in homes, at recreation, and on the roadway. "We owe it to ourselves and our families to work and live safely."

BURLEY CROP TO BE DOWN 11 PCT.

The Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service estimates that Kentucky's burley tobacco crop will be down about 11 percent this year under 1969 production.

The 1970 Kentucky burley crop is forecast at 362.1 million pounds as compared to 1969 production of 405.4 million pounds.

Total burley production in the eight-state burley belt is forecast at 537.7 million pounds, down from last year's production of 591.4 million pounds, or a reduction of 53.7 million, belt-wide.

Kentucky's preliminary yield is forecast at 2550 pounds per acre. This is 55 pounds below last year's record yield of 2605 pounds. Final yield will be determined by weather and other factors from now until the end of the growing season. The crop was in good condition about the same as last year on July 1.

Corn production in Kentucky this year is forecast at 77.5 million bushels, up 1% over last year's production yield is expected to be 74 bushels per acre.

Wheat production will be down 5% and soybean production will be up 7%, said the Crop Reporting Board.

FIVE TOWNS SENDS HELP WHEN FIRE THREATENS WEST LIBERTY

West Liberty officials and citizens appreciate the quick response of five neighboring towns which sent fire trucks and fire fighters to help contain Tuesday's disastrous fire on Main Street.

Responding quickly to phone calls from County Judge Gene Allen were volunteer fire departments from Salyersville, Hazel Green, Morehead, Mt. Sterling and Prestonsburg.

West Liberty has only one fire truck. It was on the scene quickly and the town's volunteer fire force soon had seven hoses playing on the fire, and later a total of 11. However, it ap-ed at some points the fire would get out of control and spread further along Main Street.

The fire siren sounded about 4:15 p.m. Salyersville had a fire truck on the scene by 4:55; Hazel Green and Morehead by 5:20 and Mt. Sterling a few minutes later. Breaks went out on the Prestonsburg fire truck, but the firemen brought it on to West Liberty, arriving after 5:30.

Cooperation of this type exhibits a fine spirit among Eastern Kentucky towns, and this spirit of cooperation is deeply appreciated by all West Liberty people.

WILL IT BE REASON -- OR EXPERIENCE?

"I do not oppose all that seems wrong, because the multitudes are more effectively set right by experience than kept from going wrong by reasoning with them."

—Benj. Franklin

Franklin, after helping win the Revolution and then working ceaselessly for ratification of the Constitution, issued the above statement when our Republic was in its infancy, finding its way along uncharted paths. Even if reasoning had kept the populace off shoals and reefs, they may not have appreciated the guidance. But trial and error — experience, to be exact — taught our forebears dear lessons, lessons they come to know were bonafide. Would they have been so sure through reason only, minus the experience?

It seems the human race should be advanced sufficiently to abide by reason alone — but Franklin knew better. On some things the populace just has to find out for itself by trial and error.

And in this volatile age of change, will reason govern? Or may we learn only through experience? If so, what will this method of trial and error pull us into before we realize the results and then reason out the manner?

Experience causes one to suddenly realize what reason had already tried to teach.

JUNIOR COLLEGE TRANSFER STUDENTS DO BETTER THAN "NATIVE" STUDENTS

A study of the academic performance of community (two-year) college transfer students compared to students who took their academic work on the central campus of the University of Kentucky, reveals no great difference in the academic performance of the two groups.

In fact, the two-year college transfer students achieved slightly higher grades for their four years of college work than a comparable number of "native" students on the four-year campus.

The study was made by Dr. R. N. Sutton, native of Rockcastle county and now director of admissions at Western Kentucky University.

Dr. Sutton used matched pair design, studying performances of 140 pairs of students, half from community colleges and half "native" students.

Average of their respective grades for four years of college turned out this way—

"Native" Student — 1st Year, 2.51; 2nd Year, 2.58; 3rd Year, 2.57; 4th Year, 2.83.

Transfer Student — 1st Year, 2.76; 2nd Year, 2.98; 3rd Year, 2.61; 4th Year, 2.88.

Their academic performance was measured in terms of grade-point averages.

This newspaper for several years has championed the need for community, or junior colleges, with free bus transportation into neighboring areas. We have long maintained that four year campuses can profit greatly through the two-year college system, because native Kentucky students who get their first two years of college work at community colleges, or anywhere, for that matter, will make better upper-classmen on four-year campuses than students from outside the state.

But junior colleges are needed in order that native Kentuckians from low-income families may receive a chance to go to college.

Also, free bus transportation is needed for students who find it impossible to commute privately to junior colleges.

Such a system will cost parents and taxpayers less than building costly dormitories on four-year campuses, will provide equal educational opportunities to all Kentuckians, and will provide four-year campuses with a better type of upper classmen.

ON EDGE OF SERVITUDE

THE RICHMOND REGISTER

Saturday, May 9, was an unusual day. That was the day in 1970 when the average American taxpayer finally quit working for the government and began working for himself. From January 1 until May 9 — over four month — every dollar he earned would be required to pay taxes on his earnings for the year. Stated in another way, the average American taxpayer worked two hours and 49 minutes out of an eight-hour day just to pay his tax bills.

OBSERVATIONS AND PREDICTIONS

LIMIT FARM SUBSIDIES—

After a two-year fight, the Senate last week voted an amendment to a farm appropriation bill that will limit subsidy payments to any farm to $20,000 maximum. The amendment already had been approved by the House. But the limitation will effect few farms in Kentucky. Last year only 11 farms received subsidy payments above $20,000. Top subsidy payment in Kentucky last year went to Reynolds Metals Co., which collected $34,500 for farm practices on its 9,000 acre farm in Henderson county.

TRY KILLING TOBACCO PROGRAM — Senator Frank Moss of Utah caught tobacco state senators unaware last Thursday and proposed an amendment to the Agriculture Department appropriation bill which if it had passed would have barred use of federal funds for the tobacco price-support program. But tobacco states senators rallied their forces quickly and defeated the anti-smoking amendment $2 to 15. Moss's amendment also sought to prohibit federal payment of tobacco insect and grading fees. Moss is a long-time critic of the tobacco program, claiming it is a health hazard. His state grows the most pork in the nation, and health authorities long have known that pork, particularly hard fat, is the prime cause of arteriosclerosis (hardening of the arteries), yet Senator Moss has never sought to outlaw pork production, nor label it as dangerous to health.

TOBACCO USE DROPS — Domestic use of burley tobacco dropped 28 million pounds during the 1968-69 marketing year, and a total of 27% of the 1969 burley crop was taken by the co-op support price, a 17% jump over the previous year. Acreage was reduced 10% for 1970 but this amounts to only 7 1/2% because hases under one-half acre cannot be cut. Joseph J. Todd, deputy director of the tobacco branch of the Agriculture Department, told co-op members recently, "growers cannot keep their programs if they do not bring supplies into better balance with demand and reduce government loan holdings. I think this will require a drastic change in the production adjustment program." He indicated growers would have to go to acreage-poundage control.

WHY NOT CAMARGO UNIVERSITY? — The Kentucky Historical Society and the State Highway Department last week erected a historical marker at the site of the once famous Olympia Springs health resort in southern Bath county. And the marker is well merited at this once famous spa of early days where the wealthy and socially minded enjoyed a gay whirl of social activities. History says the first stage coach line was established in 1803 and ran from Lexington through Winchester and Mt. Sterling to Olympia Springs. And another historic place should be marked nearby—the fabled University of Camargo, where the late Judge Ed C. O'Rear told an elite up-East meeting of attorneys that he studied law. O'Rear was reared on a farm on Wilson Road near Camargo, and "read law" in the office of Judge John Tom Hazelrigg in West Liberty while he was serving as a printer's devil in the office of the Mountain Scorch in West Liberty. But the "University of Camargo" served as his alma matre when the up-East group asked each attorney to in-

In the 1968-69 school year, 305 public and private secondary schools included a course on venerable disease in their regular curriculum. At least one school in each of the 120 counties participated, with 100 percent participation in 22 counties.

BUSINESS HERE AND HEREABOUTS

STATE REVENUE for the past fiscal year, ending June 30, may exceed predictions, with approximately $1,000,000 to spare, said Revenue Commissioner J. E. Luckett last week.

AT PAINTSVILLE, citizen's group opposed to overweight coal trucks suggests it may seek to impeach some Johnson County officials. Brady Rose, president of Citizens' League for Law Enforcement, would not specify the official or officials the group is opposing.

APPALACHIAN REGIONAL COMMISSION announced a $286,400 federal grant to Bell County Vocational School, Pineville, to pay for equipment to be used in auto mechanics and television repair courses. State and local funds will provide the balance of a $358,000 project.

TOBACCO FARMERS are taking their fight against three major television networks to a higher court. U. S. District Court at Lexington dismissed a suit in which the farmers sought to stop networks from using anti-smoking messages which farmers consider to be untrue. Kentucky Farm Bureau Executive Secretary John W. Koon said the farmers have appealed to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati.

KENTUCKY'S POPULATION increased by 122,156 over the last decade, according to the preliminary figures from the U. S. Census Bureau. The 1970 population count was put at 3,160,312. . . . The state's largest city, Louisville, lost 33,716 residents during the 10-year period, numbering 356,923 citizens in 1970. Jefferson County, however, gained 79,028, for a 1970 count of 689,975. Urban growth and the trend to suburban living was trend to reverse for the decline in Louisville's population. . . . Preliminary figures also showed that Lexington's gain of 45,134 residents upped 1970 total to 107,944 and places the Fayette County metropolitan area in line to become a first-class city. The state constitution provides a city may become first-class after achieving a population of more than 100,000. The action, however, must come from the General Assembly. . . . Lack of employment was blamed for population losses in Southern Kentucky. The count in the 5th District dropped from 417,544 to 383,169 in 1970.

VETERANS QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q: Is a veteran 65 years of age or older required to furnish evidence of disability to be eligible for VA pension?

A: No, unless he is also claiming he is housebound or requires aid and attendance.

Q: I was just discharged from the Army, and have two teeth that need filling. Will the VA do this for me?

A: In most cases, yes, but you should apply at once — preferably, within six months of separation. In no event should you delay applying for this dental treatment for more than one year from the date of your discharge.

Q: My husband, a veteran, died recently, and the VA paid his life insurance to his former wife even though they had been divorced 15 years ago. Why was this done?

A: The VA is required by law to pay the insurance to the last person designated as beneficiary by the insured veteran.

Q: I am a single veteran attending college while drawing educational assistance from the VA. I plan to marry a widow with two children. Will I have to adopt the children in order to receive increased education assistance?

A: No. You may claim them as step-children, if they live in your household. It is not necessary to adopt them to qualify for additional assistance.

MORGAN COUNTY FARM FIELD DAY SET FOR NEXT THURSDAY AT EZEL

Event At Farm Of Harold Rose Starts At 10:30

Livestock and feed production will be the central theme of a farm tour and home remodeling and construction will be points of interest for both men and women at Morgan County's annual Farm and Home Field Day Thursday, July 23, at the farm of Harold and Dorothy Rose at Ezel.

Mr. Rose conducts a modern feed-production program in conjunction with a successful dairy operation. And with an average annual production of 12,000 lb. of milk per cow and a carrying capacity of one cow per every two acres of silage and forage, Mr. Rose's farming operation is an outstanding example of the opportunities offered by hillside farming in this section of Eastern Kentucky.

MODERN HILLSIDE FARMING OPERATION WIDELY ACCLAIMED

Though many outside the region continue to view East Kentucky hill land as of little agricultural value, Mr. Rose is helping to dispel this image. His program has been featured in this region's edition of the Progressive Farmer.

In addition, his farming operation will be the subject of a color feature in the July 17 edition of The Louisville Courier Journal. Kentucky Farmer Magazine also plans an article on his successful operation.

The farm tour, scheduled to leave the Roses' home at 10:30 a.m. July 23, will be via tractor wagon and will have some interesting stops.

The cows themselves will be subjects of much interest. Also of interest will be the forage and silage crops. Good stands of red clover in pastures are the result of renovation and fertility programs patterned on successful research findings at the University of Kentucky. Also to be viewed will be four varieties of alfalfa, two of which are said to be somewhat resistant to the alfalfa weevil; silage corn; plans for a new milking parlor, freestall housing, and feeding operation; irrigation system in operation; and a method of reseeding legumes, and pasture rotation.

JOHN HISKEL AMONG THOSE TO SPEAK

Featured speaker for the event are John Hiskel of WSAZ-TV, Huntington, W. Va.; Shirley Phillips, Assistant Director of Extension in Agriculture at the University of Kentucky; Bob Walls, area Extension dairy specialist, and Bradley Brown, area development specialist.

Mrs. Mary Jo Litten, Extension specialist in housing, and Mrs. Rose will conduct a tour of the newly remodeled farm home.

Also to be featured will be some good 4-H demonstrations under direction of Green Floyd, a recent addition to the Morgan County Extension staff.

The Morgan County Homemakers will provide the vittles and promise a delicious and wholesome lunch for all who attend.

The Morgan County Extension Service staff invites everyone to attend the field day. County Extension Agent Douglas Howard, commenting to The Courier on the excellence of Mr. Rose's forage and livestock program, said, "Morgan County may well claim the right to the title 'Bluegrass County of the Mountains' if more of our people would take a close look at what is being done by Mr. Rose and then apply the same innovations to their own farming operations."

FIRE . . .

He shouted to Mack Keeton standing inside the station to call the fire department. Two minutes later, the Elam building was engulfed in flames and smoke.

In the meantime, city hall employees, alerted by John Stevens who noted the billowing smoke at the other end of the street, sounded the fire siren in the courthouse tower. The fire truck arrived about five minutes later.

An attempt was made to surround the buildings with fire hoses. But the searing heat prevented firemen from getting near the rear of the buildings and soon all three were ablaze.

Unable to reach the flames between the buildings, West Liberty Fire Department officials turned their attention to preventing the fire from spreading. It was not until around 4:50 p.m. that firemen were confident they could contain the blaze.

No Warning

The suddenness with which the fire erupted stunned employees working in the buildings. One minute, all was serene. The next, without warning, the entire area was engulfed in roiling black smoke. Two minutes later, flames from the rear of the Elam Building had raced out the front of the structure.

Citizens recovered immediately, however, and rushed to help remove merchandise and equipment from the buildings. However, they were unable to approach the businesses in the Elam Building.

Smoke from the fire was visible for miles shortly after it erupted. For a time, the intense heat threatened to ignite houses on the north side of Prestonsburg Street and to the west across Trimble Street.

Other Fire Depts. Notified

Recognizing the danger to other Main Street buildings and nearby homes, City Councilman Graden Walter immediately telephoned the Morehead fire department for aid. At the same time, County Judge Gene Allen was placing calls for help to fire departments at Salyersville, Hazel Green, Prestonsburg, and Mt. Sterling. All responded by sending fire trucks and firemen.

Involved in this emergency was a back-up system involving several other fire departments which were alerted to stand by in case of a fire in any of the towns which had sent equipment to West Liberty.

West Liberty Fire Chief Arnold Helton had nothing but praise for the neighboring fire crews which had responded speedily and efficiently. Helton, Assistant Fire Chief Kenneth Turner and other lieutenants said they were confident they could hold the fire at the alley, but admitted it was a near thing. The fire trucks from neighboring towns were a welcome sight.

Helton had particularly high praise for the Hazel Green department whose crew sized up the situation, learned that additional hoses were needed in the rear of the burning buildings, then moved into position, looked up hoses, and went to work.

Helton also commended spectators who gathered to witness the fire. "They were courteous, stayed out of the way, and were quick to help when needed," he said.

Local Fire Dept. Commended

The West Liberty Fire Department received its highest praise from Mt. Sterling Fire Chief Manley, who has experienced two similar conflagrations in that town. Manley commended the local fire fighters on an "excellent job containing the blaze with only one fire truck."

Helton said at no time was there any danger of running out of water. He estimated that around 85,000 gallons of water were used to combat the fire and said 220,000 gallons remained in the tank immediately after the fire was contained.

Electricity was turned off over parts of West Liberty and all gas service was shut off as a result of the fire. Telephone service in the immediate area was disrupted for a time, also. Firemen who remained on duty throughout the night to keep smoldering ruins wetted down with hoses, were able to leave the scene Wednesday afternoon.

FIRE STARTED HERE — Flames were first discovered around the eaves at rear of C. C. Elam Building. Elam Utility Co. Bldg. is at left. This photo was snapped shortly after alarm was sounded, just before firemen arrived on the scene.

West Liberty firemen and volunteers pour water onto Rex Theatre Building in alleyway between Main Street and Trimble Street in successful effort to prevent spread of flames to other buildings on Main Street. Battling the blaze alone with one fire engine, West Liberty firemen were forced to concentrate all hoses at this point to prevent flames from jumping the gap to Morgan Motor Building, out of the picture at left.

HEAT MELTS SIGN ACROSS STREET

Temperature was around 92 degrees Tuesday afternoon when fire started in the C. C. Elam building on Main street and spread to buildings on either side, the Elam Utility Co. building and the Rex Theatre building.

And the heat became so intense in a short while that it melted some letters of the large "ASHLAND" sign on Collin's Ashland Oil Service Station across Prestonsburg street, also melted the glass out of a large street sign at the service station.

And westward, across Trimble street, heat from the burning buildings melted plastic curtains in the two-story frame apartment building owned by Mrs. Justine Hall. Close watch was kept on the Hall frame building. Once a small fire started in the upstairs but was quickly extinguished.

The C. C. Elam building, where the fire started, was constructed almost entirely of wood, a two story structure facing 85 feet on Main street and extending back to Trimble street a distance of 125 feet. The building had a brick front, but the remainder was built of wood, and this burned quickly, emitting billowing clouds of black smoke and intense heat.

TEST PROBES. . .

Strickland said Wednesday he hoped to get to the granite in another two weeks, but he said they might have to go as deep as 10,000 feet to get to it.

"We are going to the granite. Then if we don't hit any more pays, we will come back up the 4,600 foot level and work the gas we hit there," Strickland said.

The well is being drilled on the Cecil Ison farm at Stephens at the mouth of Ison Creek on Little Fork in eastern Elliott, Slim Ray of London is the drilling contractor, using a rotary rig.

Trading in leases is still lively in the area, and all the big companies are keeping scouts at the scene. Ashland Oil, Penzoil and Shell own most of the leases in that section, though Monitor has bought several thousand acres of leases nearby in western Lawrence county.

Monitor has said it will drill a second deep-test in this area, probably in eastern Morgan.

GRAHN MAN DIES

LETTER TO THE EDITOR FROM TURKEY

Hello again from Turkey and a very special hello to my parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaver of Route 1 West Liberty.

Last week we drove to the Aegean Coast of Turkey and visited the Ancient ruins of the city of Ephesus and the last home of Mary, the mother of Jesus. We believe this is the most fascinating adventure we have ever had.

On the way to Ephesus we were surprised and could hardly believe our eyes when we saw that people were actually still farming with ox teams. They use oxen to plow their ground, pull their wagons and various other things.

We saw children and adults up in the hills tending flocks of goats and sheep. Many times we had to stop the car and wait for camels to walk by.

When we got to Ephesus we drove up the highest mountain we've ever been on and right from the very top, far away from everything, was Mary's last home. She went there with St. John and died there. But her tomb has never been found.

From there we went to visit the ancient ruins of the city of Ephesus. Most of the buildings are well preserved and we saw some beautiful carvings and drawings and statues.

The city was founded in pre-Jonian times and saw the migration of the Greeks, following the decline of the Hittite Empire in the middle of the 13th Century B. C. In the middle of the 6th Century B. C. Croesus, the last King of Lydia, besieged Ephesus.

With the defeat of Croesus by the Persians in 547 B. C., Ephesus joined the Persian Confederation. In 494 B. C. Darius, King of the Persians, conquered the area.

After a cloudy era during the Peloponnesian Wars, Alexander The Great liberated Ephesus from Persia and granted it independence.

Ephesus became the world's largest city having a population of over a half million souls.

St. John and St. Luke preached here. The seven churches of Asia had their head here, the first Christian churches in the world. St. Luke, St. Peter and the virgin Mary were citizens of Ephesus at one time.

St. Luke, and St. John are buried here. We visited their tombs.

We walked the marble streets, walked by the great teachers of the early Christian Church. This in itself has been the outstanding thing to have happened to us during our six months in Turkey (Asia-Minor).

We hope to travel more and from time to time will write and tell of our travels.

Pikeville To Get Model Vocational Training Project

The U.S. Department of Health and Education and Welfare last week approved a grant of $109,982 to Eastern Kentucky University "to develop a model of occupational education at Pikeville, which has been designated as a Model City by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Vocational education thus will be the latest installment on a long list of projects to be undertaken by the citizens of Pikeville. HUD allocations will help change the flow of Big Sandy River through the Peach Orchard Mountain thus opening up more level land and giving access to more highways and rail tracks.

Morganfield was the scene of many skirmishes during the Civil War. During World War II, Camp Breckinridge, a large prisoner-of-war and training camp, was located near there.

COMBS AND FORD HIT STRIP MINING

LOUISVILLE, KY. — Young Democrats at their convention here heard speeches by both candidates for governor — Bert T. Combs and Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford — and each hit strong at strip mining.

Said Ford: "I am serving notice that when elected, my administration will stop strip mining where reclamation is not feasible and will completely control strip mining where reclamation is possible."

Former Gov. Combs said: he hoped the youth would draw up legislative proposals "to stop the destruction of our landscape by uncontrolled strip-miners and the destruction of our highways by overweight trucks."

Combs said a severance tax on coal is needed and that overweight coal trucks must be regulated. He said he would have a comprehensive speech on strip mining soon.

US-460 IMPVT. PROJECT SET

FRANKFORT, Ky., July 13, 1970 — Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss today announced a road improvement project for Morgan County.

US 460, the West Liberty-Salyersville Road, will be realigned due to a full slip. Construction will require grade and drain work and a bituminous surface will be placed on the road beginning 4.7 miles east of West Liberty and extending southeast 0.09 mile.

Completion of the project is scheduled for November, Goss said.

One of Kentucky's most famous family feuds, that of the Tollivers and Martins, took place near Morehead, situated in the southeast Cumberland hill country.

There are 68 parks comprising approximately 7,500 acres of publicly-owned parkland in the Louisville metropolitan area.

ODDS AND ENDS

By Earl Kliner, Jr.

With a family of 13 children, a celebration for each child on its birthday would prove quite a task for Mom. So, Mr. and Mrs. James Conley, who with their 13 children make up the entire population of Honeymoon Hollow at Florriss, celebrate all the children's birthdays at one time — on the Fourth of July.

And quite a treat it is, too. This year, for example, Mrs. Conley baked a 14-layer birthday cake — one layer for each child, plus one layer for a son-in-law's birthday.

Last we heard the family and neighbors were still feasting on cake. It weighed 37 pounds.

Locally — as elsewhere — much attention is riveted on student unrest, U. S. involvement in Southeast Asia and the Middle East, a sagging economy, and continuing inflation. All these problems — highly publicized by the national news media — tend to distract our attention from less publicized, but more immediate dangers to our way of life.

For instance, Kentucky and other tobacco producing states have more to fear from certain elements within the Congress of the United States than from the mouthings and posturings of all the student radicals in the world. An example occurred last week in the U. S. Senate. Tobacco state senators, momentarily caught unaware, had to scramble to defeat an amendment aimed at destroying the tobacco program.

The amendment to the Agriculture Department's appropriation bill would have barred use of federal funds for the tobacco price support program. The amendment was introduced by Sen. Frank Moss of Utah, the anti-smoking advocate who led the fight for tougher health warnings on cigarette packages. He introduced his amendment with scant forewarning. Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky said he knew about the Moss amendment only 45 minutes before it was introduced.

Cooper and other tobacco state senators hastily took the floor to attack the amendment while others sought votes to defeat it. Defeat it they did. But it was an ominous reminder that the anti-cigarette forces smell complete victory for their cause and are not about to be satisfied with their recent victories against the tobacco industry.

Received the following in the mail last week from June May Cooper of Harrisburg, Pa. and a native of White Oak. We liked it. We think you will — There is a valley in the hills of Kentucky

Of which many tales have been told

Of the creek they named for the white oak trees,

Of their beauty when the leaves turned gold.

There our forefathers built their church

And lived by the Golden Rule

Late in summer when their crops were in

They sent their children to school.

Then it was time for the sorrowful to be made.

The old mule went round and round.

The children's laughter as they dipped in the foam

Made a lovely, musical sound.

They had no radios, no highways to ride on.

But the news got around just the same.

And a man's word was his bond.

I still hear the tunes my daddy used to play

On the old violin we have long since laid away.

He'd play "Sweet Evalina" that my mother loved to hear

And when he played "Bonaparte's Retreat."

I was always near.

My family now sleeps on the hill at White Oak

Far away from cities noise and din

Where flowers bloom the longest

And birds sing the sweetest

And God is in the wind.

FIRE PHOTOS

Photos above show frightening scene which greeted firemen as they arrived moments after alarm was sounded. Roiling smoke is from C. C. Elam Building where the conflagration started. The fire was first reported about 4:10 p.m. by numerous persons. Within two minutes, the Elam Building was a raging inferno.

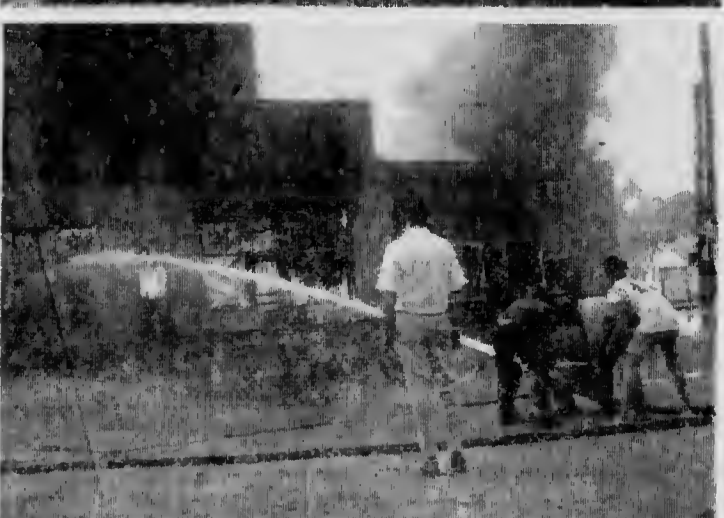

Second here trained on the blaze was this one at rear of C. C. Elam Bldg. Fire was first discovered licking at the eaves in the upper story at left center in photo. Two minutes later the massive frame structure, which contained two businesses and storage space for another, was a raging inferno. Heat was so intense at this point that telephone poles across Prestonsburg Street, left, caught fire and lawn grass ignited. Heat blistered paint on houses and melted plastic curtains in nearby homes. Minutes after bottom photo was snapped, walls began to cave in, sending flames soaring high into the air.

In a futile effort to control flames in Elam Building, volunteers mounted hose on roof of the former Rex Theatre Building, which housed two businesses and later was gutted. Intense heat drove firemen from the roof shortly after photo was made. Bottom photo: Spectators on lot next to Commercial Bank are nearly obscured by smoke fanned toward them by brisk westerly wind.

These photos show situation on Main Street side of fire shortly after rear walls of Elam Building began to crumple. The conflagration was fanned by brisk westerly wind. Had the wind been from a northeasterly direction, particularly during the momentary confusion immediately following the alarm, many believe the entire Main Street business section would have been engulfed.

In top photo, flames shoot skyward as front walls of Elam Building begin to fold. Bottom photo: It was here, only minutes later in an alley between old Morgan Motor Building (left) and theatre building, that firemen finally were forced to make a stand in a successful effort to prevent the flames from spreading to other buildings. With the Elam Building a blazing pile of rubble and the theatre building burning out of control, firemen concentrated all their attention to preventing the flames from jumping the gap to the Morgan Motor Building occupied by Quality Dry Cleaners. For a time it was touch and go. A shift in the wind could have brought disaster. Slate roof of theatre building and its solid brick walls slowed the flames. In the meantime, Elam Utility Building on north side of the square was gutted. Fire trucks and crews from five surrounding towns began arriving shortly after West Liberty firemen managed to contain blaze at the alley.

Top photo shows arrival of Salyersville Fire Truck which was first of five trucks from neighboring towns to answer West Liberty's call for help. West Liberty Fire Chief Arnold Holton (pointing) directs Salyersville detachment to standby position. Hazel Green Fire Department's pumper truck is shown in action on Trimble Street shortly after arriving at 5 p.m.

Heat from burning Elam Bldg. Tuesday was so intense that this sign on Collins Ashland Oil Service Station 200 feet away was melted. Heat from the blaze ignited telephone poles and lawn grass across Prestonsburg Street, blistered house paint and melted plastic curtains in Justine Hall's boarding house located across Trimble Street directly behind Elam Building.

Morgan County Peace Corpsman Returning To Iran

Darryl Spencer Has Been With Corps Three Years

By GEORGE WOLFORD
Ashland Independent

In these helter-skelter, hustle days, a lot of us hanker for simpler times, when a man meant more; where the pace was slower, where machines and technology had not become all-involving.

A young West Liberty man feels he has found this slower gear in today's life in the country of Iran. And he means to keep on living that pace, at least for a while.

Darryl Spencer, son of Dr. and Mrs. Alec Spencer, this week wraps up a month's stay in the United States. It follows three years in Iran with the Peace Corps and he has contracted to return to that country next week as a teacher in the University of Mashhad.

His initial pair of years were spent at Fasa, in the south, and last year he taught at Bidkht, in the far northeast. In each instance, and next year, too, English is his subject.

"This country has long made English a requirement in grades 7-12," he said, and now they are emphasizing the language at higher levels. One entire university there has now been made all English. It is now he coming the country's second language, as far as schools are concerned, and has practically edged aside French.

But the major question with a youth like Darryl Spencer is Why? He has an answer.

"Iran has a society, except for the capital of Tehran, which is pre-20th century — very much like the 19th century in our country, except they have no modern improvements. For example, there is no television, no influential newspaper, influential network, or even national ruler. It is a society founded almost completely on human relationships, and I am returning to Iran because I want to live in a society like that."

He stresses the indefiniteness of his planning. "My contract is for 1 year, with the university and includes air transportation from here to Iran and back. Still, since this is my fourth year, I don't know whether I'll ever come back to here or not. I don't want to commit myself just one year."

Darryl is a 1960 graduate of Morgan County High School, of Transylvania, and holds a masters from Georgetown University in Washington, D. C. He lunched on the sea of international hope because a great man of this century asked him to.

"I stood on the White House lawn during the summer of 1963 with a large group of young people and heard President John Kennedy ask young people to join his Peace Corps."

The young Morgan Countian moved around in Washington both as a student and a summer employee of the District of Columbia government. His training in college was in international relations, but I mingled enough socially with the embassy people to know I couldn't have gone into foreign service."

He credits the cram course given in ten weeks by the Peace Corps for his success — or satisfaction and satisfactory performance — in Iran. "College and graduate school contributed little to what I am doing now. My training in the Peace Corps was invaluable, both in learning to speak Iranian and in developing techniques of language teaching, such as I now use."

Students in Iran differ from those of the U. S., he quickly points out. "Students there are very respectful of teachers... very attentive in class... very friendly people, but a student never become the equal of his teacher."

He lives alone. "There are no other Americans in town, although there were some who lived six miles away, and we visited a lot because they were exceptional people. The Corps intends for its volunteers to live with Iranian people, learning the language, and I had my own house for three years. More than anything else, he missed music. "but I expect to have access to a piano this year, and I do have a recorder and tapes."

"I have a friend who has been there for 14 years Among Americans, only Jews and Southerners seem to get along, for they have similar, close-family backgrounds to Iranians. Big city people from the U. S. do have problems. The homes are large with three generations usually living together, and the people are famous for hospitality."

Does he hope to help change, or improve the country, to impress American methods and standards? "No. We're not there to make significant changes. After all, we're a country 400 years old and theirs is over 6,000. Most of the Peace Corps people there are not of typical American image. They are anti-militaristic, anti-imperialistic. The fact we're teaching them English doesn't mean we have to teach them anything else."

STATE AND LOCAL OFFICIALS WILL CONFER ON NEW HEALTH BUDGET

FRANKFORT, Ky. — Philip R. Spangler, local health administrator of the State Department of Health, will visit 11 local health departments in this area during the week of July 20.

Mr. Spangler is one of 11 top Department of Health officials who are visiting each of Kentucky's 120 local health units in mid-July.

According to acting commissioner of health William F. McElwain, M. D., the purpose of the visits is to discuss each county's public health budget for the new fiscal year (which began July 1 and ends June 30, 1971) in relation to local health needs and services, progress and problems.

Each man will visit approximately 11 counties as a "generalist" with a working knowledge of all local health programs. Dr. McElwain said, rather than as a specialist in his particular field.

"We are traveling all over the state to help each county assess its most pressing needs and to plan services to meet those needs, within the limits of available funds," Dr. McElwain noted. "We are there to help in any way we can and to establish closer ties between state and local health departments."

Mr. Spangler will visit health units in Breathitt, Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Morgan, Perry, Pike and Wolfe Counties. A 19-year public health veteran, he began his career with the United States Public Health Service and entered state service in 1958 where he has specialized in local health services and administration. A University of Louisville graduate, Mr. Spangler received the Master of Public Health degree in 1960 from the University of Michigan.

Spangler will visit the Morgan County Health Department Tuesday morning of next week.

SOCIAL SECURITY SERVICE BY PHONE

Yes, Social Security in most instances is as near as your phone. In Ashland, the number is 325-7666.

Thus Thomas B. Thompson, manager in Ashland, described the latest technique, developed to provide more convenient service to residents of this area. "We are now equipped to handle most social security business by telephone," Thompson explained.

"We can help fill out your application for monthly payments in many instances over the phone and then mail the form to you for your signature; we can accept change of address information from beneficiaries, and, of course, answer specific questions about the social security program, including Medicare, over the telephone."

Thompson suggested that if you have business with the social security office, you take advantage of this telephone service. "Call first," he urged. "It may save you a trip to the office."

YOUNG DEMOCRATS ELECT AREA PEOPLE TO STATEWIDE OFFICES

Herbert L. Wells Is Vice President; Keck Is Dist. Head

Herbert Lawrence Wells of West Liberty and Ron Lowe of Ashland were elected vice-presidents of the Kentucky Young Democrats at the concluding session Saturday of the three-day Young Democrats convention in Louisville.

Jody Richards, a Bowling Green businessman and former journalism professor at Western Kentucky University, was elected president to succeed Don Mills, editor of the Lexington Herald, who has served the past year. Some 440 delegates from across the state attended.

Jack Keck of Sandy Hook was elected 7th District chairman, and Mrs. Patricia Bailey of Salyersville was elected district chairwoman. Mrs. Gary Cox of Morehead is district secretary.

Delegates from Morgan county included Walter Blevins, Jr., and Judge Gene Allen. Miss Cassandra May of West Liberty was a delegate from Morehead University.

The Young Democrats enacted a set of resolutions that call for a severance tax of up to 20 cents a ton on strip-mined coal, adoption by the legislature of an abortion law similar to the New York law, and a censor of Vice President Agnew for "his divisive comments."

The convention, also without dissent approved resolutions: "Urging Gov. Nunn to include a proposed salary increase for teachers in his forthcoming call of a special session of the legislature."

"Supporting enactment of a 'strict financial disclosure law' for public officials."

"Calling for ROTC to be elective, rather than compulsory, as state universities which have the officer-training program."

The Young Democrats voted down two proposed resolutions — one that sought to criticize Gov. Nunn's call-out of the National Guard at the University of Kentucky disturbances in May, and another that asked that the United States declare an immediate cease-fire in the Indochina fighting and withdraw all troops within three months. Both proposals evoked considerable debate, but were voted down by voice vote.

YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

Social security is for younger families and workers too, according to Thomas B. Thompson, manager of the Ashland district social security office.

Thompson stated that a recent survey disclosed that approximately 69% of younger workers surveyed looked on social security primarily as a program for older people, and were not aware that they had a current protection under the program too in case of their disability or death.

"It often happens that in the case of the death of a younger worker his social security is the most valuable single asset that he leaves his family," Thompson stated.

He went on to point out that in case of death, survivors benefits for a widow and two children range from a minimum of $96 a month to about $434 a month, with an average of about $292 per month.

"This can add up to a lot of money, particularly if the children are quite young," Thompson stated. He went on to state that some 3 million surviving children and widowed mothers get social security each month.

Thompson stressed further that if the worker becomes disabled social security can help provide support for both the worker and his family, with benefits ranging from a minimum of $96 a month to a maximum of $434 a month, with an average of about $273 a month.

"Some 2 1/2 million disabled workers and their dependents receive benefits each month," Thompson stated.
